

Dear Sir or Madam,

I am extremely concerned about global warming and its probable effects on my family and friends.

The Energy Green Paper does not contain specific targets for cuts in greenhouse gas emissions. I strongly suspect that targets have been omitted by the paper's authors because under current government policies, for the foreseeable future, Ireland will continue to increase our emissions. That is unsustainable and betrays future generations.

I am very upset about this and strongly urge you to rethink the proposals in the Green Paper and make a major effort to achieve large cuts in our emissions.

Yours sincerely,

Andrew Algeo
